Fill in the nutritional blanks... with Young Living® whole food supplements

What's true about the foods we eat is also true about our nutritional supplements: The natural vitamins, minerals and micronutrients that are stripped from the whole food during processing are irreplaceable. Isolated from their natural constituents (enzymes, fiber, buffers) single nutrients are not as potent, bio-available or effective as in their natural state. And enriching with cheap, synthetic vitamins and minerals is adding nutritional insult to injury.

You can be confident about Young Living supplements, as the company has always used whole, natural foods in their products and supplements. Now, they've added supplements made with dried superfoods and the most potent fruits and berries that have health protecting properties.

Nutrition Protects Us From Disease

Nourishing our bodies well is important to fuel today's activities and—as the medical profession has recognized—may play an important role in disease prevention.

Reversing a long-standing anti-vitamin policy, The Journal of the American Medical Association today is advising all adults to take at least one multi-vitamin pill each day.

"...it now appears that people who get enough vitamins may be able to prevent such common chronic illnesses as cancer, heart disease and osteoporosis."

Journal of the American Medical Assc.
2002;287:3116-3126

These are just a few reasons why the best health insurance you can get is eating a wide variety of whole foods plus whole food supplements from Young Living. Read on to learn which Young Living supplements address your specific health concerns and support your stressed body systems.
